Testimonial

From our very first encounters with the Community Church of Chapel Hill UU, Joan and I were deeply moved by the astounding RE program and the church's unflagging devotion to social justice issues. These efforts, as well as others that regularly occur within these walls and outside these walls, are supported by the caring leadership of Rev. Thom, Rachel, and Marion. As a result, we are hopeful for the future of our world.

The new building addition will advance and support our strong RE program, and it will provide space for those many meetings and activities that are the life blood of our commitment to continued spiritual growth and community action. Here is one specific instance of how our building has served the greater community, which occurred before the pandemic closed the church to onsite activities. The Immigrant Justice Committee provided space for a support group sponsored by the UNC Refugee Mental Health and Wellness Initiative. This required finding space in the Jones Building for the parents and a separate space for their children during the weekly evening meetings. The building provided a safe place for the adults and a welcoming place for the children.

We cannot think of a better investment – in the youth/future leaders of our world and in expanding our walls to welcome those in need – than to support the building project as it nears the finish line. Count us in for our additional support.

We gratefully welcome your participation as we all march together towards a completed building project and its secure financial footing.
